Language models are essentially artificial intelligent systems that can process, generate human-like language. They are trained on vast amount of text data which enables them to learn patterns and relationships in language